

DAMN^o60

A MAGAZINE ON CONTEMPORARY CULTURE

JANUARY/FEBRUARY 2017

Dieter Rams
Didier Faustino
Gregor Hildebrandt
UMWELT
Bas Smets
Thomas Thwaites
Eames Demetrios
Alain Biltreyst
Barbara Jakobson
Mary Reid Kelley
Todd Bracher

Special:
NEW SURFACES

EUR 12 € UK 11 £

4 196764 312001

MATTEO BRIONI

Founder of Matteo Brioni

Matteo Brioni developed an expertise in clay and bricks based on the specialist knowledge and passion gathered by the family over four generations. This family business and factory was established in 1920 in Italy, with the Matteo Brioni brand founded in 2010 to devote itself exclusively to earthenware products. "All our products are sustainable and eco-friendly, with natural clay surface finishing, and are suitable as wall, floor, ceiling, and furniture coverings. We use raw earth as a contemporary building material, designing and producing cutting-edge living concepts by creating the perfect balance between beauty, harmony, and well-being in the environment. The basic material is natural clay from different regions; these clays are carefully selected and then blended together to create the suitable chromatic, tactile, and functional qualities to perfectly fit the particular construction, architecture, or interior project." The company manufactures under the European standards and distributes its own wide range of product lines with the Matteo Brioni label, all of which are Made in Italy.

matteobrioni.com

Multi Terra, stairs, project designed by MORQ architects

Villa QDC project designed by Meyer Architecte, 2016

Terra Evoca boiserie, Matteo Brioni stand Downtown Design Dubai, 2015

BOTTEGANOVE

Cristina Celestino

Traditional Italian ceramic manufacturing is the basis on which Christian Pegoraro started his work as a young entrepreneur. Having grown up amongst pottery, plaster moulds, and kilns, he is now the founder of BottegaNove, a company specialised in the production of one of the greatest Italian excellences, ceramic and porcelain mosaic, and he has developed a dynamic approach to the design process. The standardisation of shapes and the lack of personality in many artisan products is the reason Pegoraro has decided to experiment with new procedures, creating brand-new collections. Presented during Milan Design Week 2016, the Plumage series is designed in collaboration with art director Cristina Celestino.

botteganove.it

